Thanked everyone for the Kathleen Messure tournament turnout. CCGA gave $700 to the Cancer Society. We have been able to give more money than the previous year each year of the tournament.

The night tournament was also a success.

The Houston Lovelace was a very well run tournament and the turnout was good (79 players).

The ABCD format was enjoyed by everyone because of how evenly the teams were matched.

The Club Championship is set for May 18-19, as a two day tournament. The tournament will be flighted prior to the beginning with verifiable handicaps. If someone shoots 8 strokes or better than their handicap they move up to the next flight. Handicaps should be back by May, 14th.

There was discussion around having a senior flight and a junior flight. The rules will be determined by May meeting of CCGA.

Cedar Creek Club report was submitted Ray Mundy:

Masters week looking real good for filling up the course with golfers.

Ryder cup matches are coming along well. We may be able to add up to 8 people to the matches check with Ray if you are interested in playing and did not play last year.

The Cresant Co. is working with Augusta and the State of Georgia to build a Georgia Golf Hall of Fame. The estimated cost is $20 million and will be a world class attraction to the CSRA.

There will be two tournaments one each at Jones Creek and Eagle Watch. CCGC would like to have at least one team from Cedar Creek to participate. See Ray for details.

The new golf carts will have sand bottles attached and will be here before the Masters.

The new slope for the course is complete (see attached).

There are new flags and poles on the course.

Old Business:

Tom Welch complimented the pig cookers for their efforts.

Charlie Smith complimented Ray and the staff for how well the tournaments have been run and how well the grill is ran.

Tommy Molony suggested that a picture frame be put up for showing pictures of the tournaments and other special events. Discussion to follow.

Glen Moseley brought up the issue of people playing different tees than they said they would in the dogfights. Several minutes of discussion followed. The result was that we as CCGA members need to monitor the situation and don't let it happen.

Chuck Wienke brought up the closest to the pin on par threes. People use different clubs from different tees. Discussion followed. Result no change to the closest to pin contest during dogfights at this time. CCGA will monitor the winners for the next three months and see if there is any indication that the different clubs effect the outcome of the contest.

Dear Mr. Wallace:

On March 9, 1996 Cedar Creek Golf Club held its third annual Memorial golf tournament sponsored by the Cedar Creek Golf Club. Kathleen was one of our first lady members and was loved by all. She succumbed to cancer in 1993; therefore, we hold this memory dedicating the proceeds to the Aiken chapter of the American Cancer Society. This year we had forty eight golfers participate for charity.

I learned that the Aiken Cancer Society office does not have other agencies such as The United Way and is dependent on the generosity of the community to welcome donations of any amount with open arms. In the Aiken Standard has publicized our event with a small article about it. However, when the Aiken Cancer Society office asked for a donation for this year, they were told that unless the donation was at least $700.00, they could not spare a photographer.

The "publicity" in question here is not for Cedar Creek Golf Club but for the American Cancer Society. These people work hard for the general public needs to be made more aware of a deserving charity. We realize that $700.00 is not a large amount but we also know that it will be put to good use for cancer sufferers. As a life-long Aiken resident, I am ashamed and embarrassed at the refusal to cover an event which I feel is in the public's interest.

Yours

There was a general discussion on course rules.

Charlie Smith read a letter from the American Cancer Society thanking us for the donation from the Kathleen Messure tournament. (See attached letter)

Member/Guest Tournament has been set for June 8th.

There is concern that the participation in tournaments has not been what we would like to see.

Earl R. Beckham
TREASURER

It's Not Winter Kill, It's Winter Slaughter!

Record low temperatures, prolonged low temperatures, early warming, followed again by record low temperatures have left golf courses from the Carolinas to Texas with the worst looking fairways in twenty years. We spent the last two weeks observing conditions and teaming up with University personnel to come up with the best strategy for recovery. Not each course was the same, but the damage is following certain patterns.

DESICCATION: Areas that are on slopes or in wind patterns show severe damage. This was due to the winds drying out the soil, followed by below freezing temperatures. The result was similar to freeze drying or desiccating the plant material. We observed that low spots in these areas showed much less damage than the high areas, even though the soil complex was the same. The difference was soil moisture. This condition was also observed in areas around bunkers. Golfers continuously spraying sand out of the bunker resulted in the turf growing in a sand medium. This gave no insulation and held very little water. The result was the same but for a slightly different reason.

SHADE: As we all know, Bermuda and shade do not mix. However, shady fairways that went into the fall looking very healthy, emerged from this winter with 50 percent to 75 percent damage on many courses. It is very common on fairways running north to south, to have a dead area extending from the eastern edge to the middle of the fairway. You can trace a jagged leading edge that corresponds with the tree line. To correspond with this, tees and rough areas that were in any shade pattern are also showing winter kill.

WEAR AREAS: As would be expected, any areas that were stressed due to traffic are also showing severe winter kill. Courses that had a lot of fairway cart traffic are showing more damage than those that did not, providing other conditions were similar. On one course, the driving range had the most winter kill. This was a puzzle until someone figured out that the ball picker was continuously compacting the turf. There were several examples of tire patterns showing the most damage.

We also observed some surprising, if not strange, conditions. Two courses had fairways that were partially flooded during the most severe cold spell. These areas survived with little damage: no wear, no desiccation and no shade. Most areas that had been trenched for irrigation lines had good coverage over the lines. One course found this to be true on all fairways but one, that fairway had green all around the lines, but the areas over the lines were dead. Now, that's a real puzzle!

MOWING HEIGHT: There is a definite correlation between mowing height and winter damage. One course had a late tournament and kept the fairways cut at 1/2 inch. The fairways suffered a far greater amount of winter damage than did the roughs. Courses that were able to let the fairways get up to one inch seemed to fair better than those that did not.

RECOMMENDATIONS: Dr. Euel Coats, Mississippi State University, gave some advice we all need when he said, "Be patient, the rhizomes may be down in the soil an inch or more. Our soil temperatures have not been high enough to stimulate much activity, there may be more life than you think."

Dr. Gil Landry, University of Georgia, visited courses with Gold Kist representative Dick Crump. It was very evident that all courses were going to have to reestablish turf in many areas. Dr. Landry recommends, "Superintendents will have to maintain moisture and fertilize with a complete fertilizer using a 1-1 or 1-1/2 ratio of nitrogen to phosphorus. As long as they are sure there is no danger of another frost, sweep up as much debris as possible. This will aid in soil warm up. Minimize top dressing, verticutting, or any activity that will cause stress. Higher levels of soluble nitrogen will aid in a quicker grow in also." In addition, Dr. Landry suggested that superintendents map out damaged areas now so that they can plan a strategy for those areas next fall.

In forming your strategy, you may want to look at some work done by Mike Goatley, Mississippi State University, on fall fertilization. His work with late fall nitrogen applications showed improved spring green up and less winter stress. In addition, some work done at the University of Maryland indicated that applications of ammonium sulfate after September 1 decreased spring dead spot.

Any time conditions beyond control hit our industry, there are always those greens committees that want to assign blame to the superintendent. Observations show that no one has escaped this damage and no normal maintenance program was at fault. If you find yourself being questioned, we recommend getting your supervisor in the car and viewing the courses around you. It was not winter kill... it was winter slaughter!

Minutes of CCGA Meeting
July 2, 1996

President Charlie Smith called the meeting to order at 6:39 PM. Fifteen CCGA members attended (see attached).

The minutes of the June 4, 1996 meeting were read and passed as amended

Treasurer Earl Beckham presented the Treasurer's report (see attached report as amended).

Cedar Creek Club report was submitted Ray Mundy and Butch Dabney:

The tournament on Saturday June 1st went well.

The springing on the course is taking hold well.

The winter kill areas are coming back around. We as members need to tell people that the course condition is improving.

The rule for putting on number 4 green is to play it as a two ^{putt} green. The rules for playing on the course should be set prior to any tournament (unless advised to play the course as is).

Tournaments:

Ray discussed the member guest tournament from 1995. It was a two day tournament using 75% of participants handicap. If they did not have a USGA handicap a letter from their club pro was sufficient. This years format will be a one day tournament with verifiable handicap. It is scheduled for August 3rd.

A motion was made by Alan Gregory and seconded by Rick Bolston to have the CCGA president and tournament director to set the format for the tournament. There was discussion around the format and cost of the tournament. The cost will probably be between $60--$75 with mulligans selling for $5. The tournament will begin at 8:00 A.M. with a shot gun start played from the blue tees. Motion passed.

There was a discussion on the Oldsmobile Scramble tournament concerning how many people and when.

There was a discussion on setting up a new tournament and having a special tournament maybe once a month. Also maybe pplay as a par 3 on every hole and other ideas. We will try yto set up for the third Sunday in August and have every third Sunday as regular tournament. Also the club could pick the teams based on who signs up. Open to CCGA members with verifiable handiacps. Alan Gregory made a motion to implement this plan and further analyze cost of a tournament as discussed. It was seconded by Glen Moseley and as passed as discussed.

Glen Moseley will contact Wayne Jones to see about asetting up a trip to the Cliffs of Glassy.

General discussion:

Johnny Molony stated that everyone who participated in the tournament on Saturday (June 1st) had a good time.

Charlie Smith is having trouble with his shoulder and won't paly for a while.

Don Thomas ~~Ron Johnson~~ had an accident and can not play.

CCGA will send a card to both wishing them a speedy recovery.

Meeting adjourned at 7:50 PM.
